FRANK E. LANGLEY, Publisher

"Vigorous denials" are the easiest things to produce, but there may be other things more convincing.

The difference between the speaker of the House and the president is of the Senate is only that the latter possesses more c's.

Barring such a contingency as a collision with a submarine's projectile, the Fordists must be on the last half of their outward journey. Wonder if Ford has completed his plan of what he intends to do?

New Jersey's new congressman who caused a brass band and 160 supporters to trail him to Washington by special train probably has made the greatest hit he will make during his congressional career. The brass band kind of congressional service is going out of style.

A Brattleboro junk dealer has collected three and one-half tons of worn out automobile tires during the past season and will sell them at a good profit. The utilization of waste materials is getting to be an industry of no inconsiderable size when so large an amount of one material can be collected in so small a community as Brattleboro.

If the indiscriminate slaughter of deer were to be permitted further under the Vermont law there would be great need of closer defining of the tender age at which young deer might be killed, as there is much confusion over that matter at the present time; but, fortunately, Vermont will go back to the policy of permitting only the killing of bucks with horns so that there will be no need of defining what is an infant deer.

Repeated declarations by members of the "quadruple alliance" that they will not sign a separate peace with any one of their present enemies lends an element of conviction to the growing belief that things may be shaping themselves for the conclusion of the war. However, it is not to be expected that the cessation of actual hostilities, let alone the drawing up of a treaty of peace, would be accomplished for some months. There would, in the nature of the human mental workings, be a long season of parleying back and forth, during which actual fighting would not be brought entirely to an end although perhaps decreased in intensity.

The cause of union labor loses a valiant supporter because of the death of Philip J. Halvosa, formerly a stonecutter in Barre, then a reporter on the old Barre Telegram, later editor of that labor journal, the Vermont Union Signal, reporter on the Boston American and, finally, labor editor on the last-named journal. Although it has been 15 years since he left the ranks of union labor as an active member, Editor Halvosa was still a staunch unionist and he devoted his best energies toward the upbuilding of that cause. He was peculiarly adapted for the position of writer-advocate of that cause because of his close affiliation with the granite cutters' union, in which he had been a prominent member. Besides that, he was a gifted speaker-advocate for the labor union movement and whenever the opportunity arose he was to be found defending the principles therein involved. During the years of his residence in Barre, Mr. Halvosa was recognized as the most fluent spokesman for the labor union men.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Christmas gloves at Fitts'. Brass fern dish with fern, $1.35, at Hooker's.

Miss Fawn Barney returned yesterday to St. Johnsbury, after passing a few South Barre.

Now is your chance to buy waists, dresses, petticoats and corsets at cost price. Paris Shirtwaist House sale.

Mr. Husband, why not buy her a White sewing machine or a Hoosier kitchen cabinet for Christmas? Do it now. See Hooker & Co.

Please watch every day the Daily Times and see what the different booths will contain at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Dec. 15 and 16.—adv.

The members of the First Baptist church choir are requested to meet at the home of Mrs. A. K. Inglis, 7 Clark street, Wednesday evening at 7:15.

Bear in mind the venison and meat-pie supper when you can get a good wholesome meal for 25c and save a few steps.—adv. Saddle's 10 Keith avenue. Latest designs, ladies' and misses' coats and suits; also in young men's top coats, Balmacans, etc. Give us a call. Open forenoon as well as afternoons until after holidays.—adv.

Prof. Elmore wishes to announce that a class in dancing for pupils from 9 to 15 years will commence shortly after Christmas, the exact date to be announced later. Those wishing to join this class please leave their names with Prof. Elmore at Howland hall Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.—adv.

W. H. Favrol, who has been passing a few days in the city on business, returned last evening to his home in Manchester, N. H. While here Mr. Favrol assisted in the adjustment of the insurance on the Newton street dwelling house, owned by David E. White, which was visited by fire Saturday morning. It is stated that the insurance was adjusted at a figure near $500.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church are holding their annual fair to-day and to-morrow. Thursday afternoon there will be a home-made food sale from 2 to 5 o'clock and afternoon tea will be served in the tea-room. Admission in the afternoon free. Good programs have been provided for each evening. Admission, 10c. If anyone has been omitted in soliciting, we can assure them that their donations will be just as gratefully received as if they had been solicited.

To-day being the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, masses were said in St. Monica's church at 5:30 and 8 a. m. by the parish priest, Rev. Fr. P. M. McKenna. This evening at 7:30 o'clock there will be Benediction and the Rosary. All the members of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin are especially requested to be present and occupy seats in the middle aisle. The enrollment in the scapulars of the Blessed Virgin will take place before benediction.

Mrs. Christina Jeffray of 89 Currier street is in receipt of a message from her brother, Donald Craig, who is the skipper of a steam fishing trawler in the Dardanelles. At the beginning of the war a number of vessels of the trawler type with their captains and crews were taken over by the British ships and the one on which he is the skipper was used until recently in the dangerous work of mine sweeping. A short time ago, the trawler was assigned to duty as a dry canteen ship and a lieutenant and several men were taken to Lemnos island. The "Loch Esk," as the trawler is called, procured supplies at Lemnos and then hastened back to the Gallipoli peninsula. The next morning the canteen officers opened up for business, according to the dispatch, and sold out in two days, with the exception of 7,000 bottles of mineral water, which the Tommies on the peninsula evidently didn't relish.

Suggestions made at the Barre post-office regarding the use of the mails at Christmas time may well be heeded by any number of people who yearly dispatch bundles, papers and cards. It is recommended that Christmas packages and letters be mailed early, as packages which expedite transportation, relieves the congestion in the postoffice and insures an early arrival. "Not to be opened till Christmas" may be written on packages and if the injunction is not obeyed by a too eager recipient of the gift, the blame will not rest with the postoffice department. Red Cross and Christmas stamps may not be attached to the address side of the card or letter. Invariably letters decorated on the address side with superfluous stamps are returned from foreign countries. All bundles should be securely wrapped and tied with strong cord. The postal authorities are accustomed to discourage the practice of sending post-cards of glass, metal, mica or tincl composition. An augmented force of clerks and carriers will wait on the public at the Barre postoffice.

Constable George I. Morris was driving his tax-cab homeward in the supper hour last evening and had just started to turn in to Church street from Washington street, when a small boy aboard a sled shot down the incline from Academy street. Mr. Morris saw that a collision was inevitable, as the sled was skimming over the icy walk with all speed, promising to brush the auto before it could be stopped or backed. The driver, therefore, headed his car into the lawn at the Hedding M. E. church, a move which had scarcely been completed, when the rider crashed into the rear wheel. Constable Morris stopped his car and carried the boy to the office of Dr. William McFarland. But the doctor was out, and in response to the lad's insistent plea that he be allowed to walk home, the constable started his car and carried the youngster to his home on South Main street. He gave his name as Arthur Brown, aged 7 years, son of Mrs. Stella Brown. Examination did not reveal any injuries and the boy was able to visit a playmate after he had eaten his supper.

Special meeting of Tremont tribe, No. 16, Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. Work: Chief's degree and any other business that may legally come before the tribe.

Regular meeting of officers, A. V. O. E. of Barre, Dec. 10, 1915, on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Election of officers. A large attendance is requested. R. J. Attridge, Pres.

WANTED: MEN TO FILL GOOD CLOTHES

Yes, and they are good clothes.

It's more important to us than to you. A poor suit to you would mean only the loss of a few dollars, but if a poor suit were sold at this store it might mean the loss of trade that would run into big money.

So our first step is to buy only good clothes—we buy the kind you want—you buy the kind we sell.
